LOUISVILLE, KY. SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 13, 1919

THE SENATE AND IRELAND.

The hearing given by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to the men who presented Ireland's case brought out clearly the objections that the friends of Ireland have to the proposed League of Nations covenant, particularly article X. In granting the hearing the Senators atoned somewhat for the injustice done to Messrs. Walsh, Dunne and Ryan by the President at the peace conference. Whether any effect in the Senate will follow the hearing is quite another question. The fact that it was granted is something gained, inasmuch as it shows that the Senate wants to have all the information it can get before it acts on the treaty. The Johnson amendment, which provides that the United States shall have as many votes as Great Britain in the league, is regarded as a strong point by the treaty's foes. Here is the way one Democrat is reported to have described the plight of his colleagues in connection with the Johnson amendment:

"We are between the devil and the deep blue sea. We have to choose between this treaty and defeat in 1920. If we vote to ratify the league we alienate the Irish vote. Nothing can placate the Irish, and without their votes in 1920 we can not carry a single Northern State. Suppose we vote against the Johnson amendment. How is a Senator going back to his constituents and try to explain why he voted to give his own country one vote and another nation six votes in matters of vital concern to his country?"

That effect may be offset, however, as the True Voice says, by the imprudent utterances of some Irish sympathizers. We note that one of them was quoted as welcoming a war at once between England and the United States over the Irish question. It may as well be understood at once that such wild talk can only do harm. Whatever may be the objection to article X in principle, in practice there is no likelihood of the United States ever going to war with England to secure Irish freedom. Those who hope for it are dreaming dreams and by talking about it they are not helping Ireland's case. The power of public opinion in this country condemning English tyranny over Ireland is the only practical aid that America can give. But public opinion here will not sustain any such radical utterances as those that seek to have America go to war for Irish freedom. If Irish freedom depends on that then, indeed, is Ireland's case hopeless.

POLITICS HURTFUL.

It seems to be no longer a question of workmen participating to some extent in the management of industries in which they are employed. That the whole wage system will be placed on a new footing is promised by President Wilson, who has called a conference of all the interests concerned in production. If the conference be kept beyond the influence of politics it should accomplish much good. It may be taken for granted that labor will have a larger share in determining hours of labor and working conditions than it has heretofore enjoyed. The only difference of opinion now is as to how far labor shall be allowed to go. We don't want holism and we don't want the old capitalism that left labor nothing to say. The conference should be able to find a working mean.

REIGN OF FANATICS.

Along with the protest against the high cost of living comes the growing rumble of discontent against the reign of the Prohibition fanatic. This applies especially to the class of people who partook of beer and light wines. There are millions of these and they are rebelling against the domination of a small coterie of Prohibition hypocrites and misfit preachers drawing salaries from the anti-Saloon League. Personal liberty can not be throttled continually without a protest, and that protest will grow until there is a day of reckoning for hypocrisy.

TIME TO KNOW.

President Wilson is now making his speaking tour to convince the country that the Senate should ratify the peace treaty at once. Judging from the recent trend of argument in regard to the treaty the Senate is determined to amend it. This, say the friends of the administration, is equivalent to rejecting the whole treaty. We scarcely believe this, but if it is the truth then the treaty should be rejected. If the President can negotiate any sort of treaty that suits his peculiar whims and then force the Senate to swallow it whole on the plea that amendment means rejection it is time to know this fact. And it is time for the Senate to assert its constitutional rights over treaties.

CARSON OFF AGAIN.

Whenever England is cornered into answering why she doesn't give Ireland her freedom and self-government Carson, the blatant Orangeman, is put forth to furnish the excuse that Ulster will not be satisfied. This week Carson breaks forth again and warns America "to attend to its own affairs," and says "It was not for that we waged the war of independence." Many would like to know if in the war for independence Ireland wasn't included, and many would like to know where "we" would have been if America didn't come in and save John Bull's bacon.

SCHEME IN TREATY.

No single act of the peace treaty opponents has caused so much uneasiness in the administration ranks in the Senate as the adoption by the Foreign Relations Committee of the Johnson amendment giving the United States six votes in the League of Nations assembly, the same number as the British empire. That scheme to give six votes to Great Britain to one for the United States was one of the weakest points of the proposed treaty. There is not one argument that can be urged in favor of it. Yet we believe it will finally be acquiesced in by the Senate.

EXPOSED.

The people of India are now publishing a paper in New York exposing England's cruelty and oppression, and pleads with America to help free India from John Bull's hypocritical reign. Then Scotland comes to the front and asks to be separated from England, filling a claim of oppression and misgovernment. Verily the supposed friend of small nations is being exposed before the bar of public opinion.

NOT EXPLAINING.

In his swing around the country President Wilson has thus far failed to explain why, if we fought for the freedom of small nations, Ireland wasn't included, and why was her claims to freedom ignored at the Peace Conference.

FORTY HOURS' PRAYER.

Holy Mother Church is rich in impressive ceremonies, and not the least are those of the Forty Hours' Prayer. More than any other form of devotion it arouses the enthusiasm for God's service. This is due, of course, to the exposition of the most Blessed Sacrament and the joyful bringing home to us of the presence of our Eucharistic God in our midst. The Forty Hours opened at Pewee Valley on Sunday morning, September 7, with high mass sung by the pastor, Rev. Father Boe. In his opening sermon he told of what the church intends and does in the ceremonies and liturgy of the blessed season of the Forty Hours, that is to renew and re-enact, to make again living and present to us the same awful mysteries that were acted or instituted on the night of the Last Supper. For weeks Father Boe spared neither time nor labor to make this blessed season most impressive. The altar was ablaze with light and decorated with choice cut flowers and potted plants, which added a new beauty to the otherwise beautiful church. Despite the hot weather and despite the fact that no cars were running on account of the city railway strike many walked miles to be present at the opening services. Larger numbers attended and were faithful to their hour of adoration, and greater numbers received the sacraments than at any other Forty Hours. No doubt many were the petitions for various favors and blessings for Holy Mother Church and our country ascended during the throne of grace and were speedily granted. Sunday night the Rev. Capt. Regis Barrett, of Camp Taylor, came out to Pewee Valley and preached at the evening service. He spoke on the confessional, not so much to prove its divine institution but rather the part it plays in the life of every practical Catholic. On Sunday and Monday the devotions of the day were brought to a close by benediction, and on Tuesday morning many were brought to a fitting end with high mass and final benediction this special time of grace.

RIGHT OF CHILD.

Archbishop Glennon says: The child has a natural right to be supported, protected and educated. He has a right to be taught not only all that is necessary for good citizenship here, but as a child of God he has even a prior right to know the laws God has given for his moral and spiritual life, and all that is necessary to fit him for citizenship in the kingdom of his Father. This he can only obtain in the Catholic school. Therefore to the Catholic school he should be sent. The parent neglecting to do so violates the natural right of the child, and is guilty of child abandonment.

Death on Monday rendered desolate the home of George and Ida Stiller, 1037 Adair street, when their nine-year old son William answered the final summons. Funeral services were held Thursday morning at Holy Trinity church, attended by many mourning friends.

Profound sympathy is felt for James J. and Frances Brady, 2205 West Main street, who on Saturday suffered the loss of their bright eight-year-old son, James Francis Brady, the result of an accidental injury. Funeral services were held Monday morning at St. Charles church, conducted by Rev. Father Raffo.

St. Francis of Assisi church lost another of its old and respected members when Death's summons came to Mrs. Louisa Zimlich, 2020 Napoleon boulevard. She was sixty-three years old and the widow of Michael Zimlich. Her funeral took place Wednesday morning, Rev. Father Rothhut, celebrating the requiem high mass.

Palmetta E. Boettner, thirteen years old, was called from this life Monday evening at the home of her parents, George and Nettie Boettner, 1704 Manie street. She was a girl of amiable and happy disposition and her death caused profound sorrow among her young friends and associates. Her funeral was held Thursday morning from Sacred Heart church, Rev. Patrick Walsh conducting the solemn services.

CARDINAL AT BALTIMORE.

Cardinal Mercier, Primate of Belgium, was welcomed to Baltimore Wednesday afternoon by a throng which filled the streets from the railroad station to the residence of Cardinal Gibbons, whose guest he will be until Wednesday. Standing on the top step of Cardinal Gibbons' residence he blessed the people of the city in an unusual event in religious annals in this country.

Cardinal Mercier came down the steps of his car, smiling, moving easily, more like an athlete than a man of sixty-eight. He wore a black cassock bordered with red and under his arm was his broad-brimmed heaver hat. In the station the cardinal made a great clamor, each cheek to cheek and exchanged the kiss of peace. Cardinal Mercier, tall and stalwart, bent low, and Cardinal Gibbons raised his head and their arms were about each other's shoulders.

A large chorus greeted the Belgian primate at the station with the singing of "Vive Cardinale," while children tossed flowers at the primate's automobile. Cardinal Mercier, with Cardinal Gibbons, resigned themselves to a battery of "movie men." Once Cardinal Gibbons, with fatherly solicitude, sought to hurry his guest away from the station, but the camera men made a great clamor, and they stood still for another moment. Armed sailors sat in the front seats of the automobiles. Along the route children knelt as the cars rolled slowly by, and at the gate of the city a great crowd of priests with flags and a company of boy zouaves from one of the parishes.

After the visitor had blessed the throng, Cardinal Gibbons lustily called for the people to cheer, and this was done with a will. Then, led by boys and girls from the parochial schools, the crowd roared forth in the singing of "My Country, 'Tis of Thee." Gov. Harrison, Mayor Broening, Baltimore, and a committee of several hundred citizens greeted and accompanied Cardinal Mercier through the streets. Cardinal Mercier was principal guest at several social affairs Thursday and Friday he spoke to priests of this archdiocese in St. Mary's Seminary. Sunday he is to celebrate mass at the Cathedral and a monster reception to the people of Baltimore will be given Monday in the Fifth Regiment armory. He is to deliver his first address in America on Tuesday.

CHIROPRACTIC

THE PAST AND THE PRESENT

In the Past our ancestors were content to use the candle with its dim flickering rays.

In the Present (Today) we are privileged to use the steady, brilliant Electric light—the product of Science.

In the Past thousands of people went thru life suffering from ailments that seemed to be incurable.

In the Present (Today) thousands of people are finding out that these same ailments yield readily to CHIROPRACTIC—the modern scientific method of removing the cause of Disease.

In the Past, the idea, a mistaken one, was to try and cure the effect without making any effort to find the CAUSE.

In the Present (Today) the SCIENCE OF CHIROPRACTIC strikes right at the root of the matter, adjusts the cause, and Nature, the Great Healer, is given the opportunity to make the cure. Nature never fails in this task.

If anything goes wrong with the Electric Light system of your town the TROUBLE MAN employed by the company is immediately sent for. He locates the cause of the trouble and adjusts it. The Chiropractor is your Health TROUBLE MAN. If you are ailing send for him. He, too, will locate the cause of your trouble and at once adjust it.

A Message To Every Woman

These are days when economy is a necessity.

True economy does not consist of slackness in housekeeping, poorer food or overworked housewives.

True economy lies in taking advantage of modern methods of saving time, labor, health and money.

Household management has become a science taught in colleges and schools. Scientists and inventors have devoted their lives towards solving its problems.

Realizing the need for a source of knowledge and advice on this subject, we have established a new department, to be placed at the service of the women of Louisville.

This department will be known as the Home Economy Department, and will be at your command, without charge, at all times.

What the Home Economy Department can do for you will be described in future announcements. Watch for them.

PROGRESS THEY HAVE MADE.

Maximo M. Kalaw, Secretary of the Philippine Mission to the United States, has prepared "A Guide Book on the Philippine Question" which has recently been sent to the American press. The purpose of the pamphlet, we take it, is to prepare the American people for an appreciation of the claims of the Filipinos for independence, and it makes a strong case for the inhabitants of the islands annexed to our possessions as a result of the Spanish-American war.

What interests us most in the pamphlet are the references to the Filipino character and progress made under the influence of the Catholic missionaries. Kalaw tells us, e. g., that, under Spanish rule, "as early as 1866, out of (?) a population of 4,000,000 there were 841 schools for boys and 833 for girls. In 1892, eight years before the coming of the Americans, there were 2,137 schools. There were also during the Spanish regime colleges and universities where professional training was given," he lists these institutions, giving the year of the founding of the University of Santo Tomas, Manila, 1611, making the University "twenty-five years older than Harvard." Kalaw quotes from the French explorer La Perouse (who visited Manila 1787); the Englishman Crawford, "historian of the Indian Archipelago;" the German naturalist Jagor; the Austria Blumentritt, and the American Le Roy, to illustrate the progress made by the Filipinos under the Spanish regime. To the testimony of these men he adds a collection of comment by Americans on the Philippine republic of 1898.

A particularly interesting paragraph is devoted to Mr. Taft's opinion, expressed in a serial report to the President of the United States in 1908, on "Filipino character and integrity," who said in part: "The friars left the people a Christian people—that is a people with western ideals. They looked toward Rome, and Europe and America. It is the only Malay or oriental race that is Christian. They were like the Mohammedan who despise western civilization."

Circus Making Farewell Trip Trough
Belgium, France and the Rhineland.

Brags of Three Sawdust Rings and
One Hundred and Fifty People.

Show Given For Benefit of Civilians in Several of Large Cities.

WILL LEAVE UNIQUE CAREER.

The Knights of Columbus circus which brags of three saw dust rings and performers representing many nationalities is making its farewell trip through Belgium, France and the Rhineland. After the tour, which terminates about November 1, the show will disband leaving a unique career with the Europeans. On the present circuit the show will be given for the benefit of civilians in several of the large cities where the A. E. F. is still being represented by the military police, who are the last to leave for home.

Some idea of the magnitude of this American circus, better known as the "Casey Circus," can be gained when one realizes that it takes twenty-five freight cars to transport it about. There are upwards of 150 performers, some of whom are Italians, Japs and Czechoslovaks of European circus fame before the war. The specialties include trapeze artists, contortionists, tumblers and slack wire performers. The greater part of the actors are men from the American forces to whom the business of playing the slap stick and pantomime comedy strongly appeals. The performances are given in the open air, except when the circus strikes Paris, Brussels and other big towns. The popcorn vendor and lemonade dispenser always accompany the show, which is run under the K. of C. precept of "Everybody is welcome and everything is free."

Two and one half hours are required for the programme. The concluding act is given over to a real American spectacle which delights the Europeans. A group of some forty American Westerners ride out on wild horses broncho racing and giving an exhibition of what the men of "the foothills country" can accomplish in the art of throwing a lariat and checking a stampede.

A pictorial story of the circus has been made by a film company and is shown in this country, who never had the chance to see the show. France will be the last to see it at the great "pe."
